Figures will give a clearer idea of the ex-tent of the work performed daily by the Associated Press than any other form of de-scription. The New York office handles daily from 75,000 to 100,000 words, equal to from fifty to seventy columns of matter. On January 13, 1891, (a date taken at random), this news amounted to 95,000 words. Of course, or this mass of material no paper prints the whole; but most of it finds a place somewhere. To meet the requirements of the service, the Associated Press adapted the type writer to receiving directly from the Morse instrument, and a special was made which facilitates the handling of reports. T e e details may seem of small mo-ment, but t iey go to show the pains taken to insure perfect work. The agents of the Associated Press, who are selected for character and ability are instructed to get all of the news, but if need be to sacrifice the to the facts—in a word, to tell the They are required to treat all politicat and religious events with judicial fair-ness, and to omit social happenings having an immoral tendency. We do not find that anything is lost to thorough journalism by such limitation, but on the contrary much influence is gained thereby. The Associated Press enjoys the public confidence in its reliability to a degree unapproached by any other organization, and this enhances value of the franchises of the papers supplied by it. This confidence is upon an experience of forty years.—Century for August.

Summer in the Country

Such is now the rule of American life, We ong to hear the song of the birds, the hum of the bees even the lowing of the kine and the click of the scythe has its charm. We long for its "even spun" life a rest from the din, the clash, the conflict, and sharper contact and jostling of city and town life So we vacate our cosy and spacious homes, and for a time, dwell in the sometimes narrow tents of country life, for the sake of its broader skies and wider fields and woods But the change is not free from danger There are unripe fruits which the children will eat, cold winds from which in our summer dress we get chilled, malarial air full of fever and ague. So we must be cautious of exposure, eating, drinking, and taking with us Humphreys' Specifics. The No. One for Fever, Chill, or Exposure, Nos. The Four, Five and Six, for Summer Complaint, and Cholera, and especially Nos. Ten and Sixteen for Malaria, and Ague. With these simple Specifies we are armed for emergencies, can meet the enemy at every door, and preserve not only our peace of mind, but the the health and safety of ourselves and house-hold. Humphreys' Manual (144 pages) will be sent post paid upon aplication to the Co., Cor. William and John streets, New York.

A Plea for the Public Schools. WILV SHOULD RICH AND POOR CHILDREN BE SEPARATED? WHO ARE THE

PHILISTINES? The private school may be more fashion able than the public school; it is certainly superior in nothing else. The typical pupil of the private boarding school is the philis-tine child. He has plenty of money and spends it freely on what only harms his better nature; he is shallow and sordid, but he makes great pretenses, and is supremely satisfied with his littleness. The typical pupil of the public school is the boy who is not rich and is not very cultivated. His code of honor of manners is not burdened by conventionalities; he values your son for his manliness and pluck, not all for the shape of his collar or the size of his cravat. He is ancouth; but when once real refinement is brought to him, he admits its charm and is anxious to win some of its richness. not better for your own son, you being a rich man, that he avoid this lifeless, conven-tional bey of fashion; and find a playmate in the bright, hearty, it may be rough boy from the middle class or from the home of poverty?—From a "Remedy for American Philistinism," by Chas. Lewis Slattery, in New England Magazine for August.

"Was it Suicide?"

Why marriage is sometimes a failure is an interesting and important question to all; and everyone, married or single, should read the absorbing story with the above title, by the poet novelist Ella Wheeler Wil-cox, written in that popular author's most forcible style, which is published in the September number of that always bright periodical Demorest's Family Magazine. It contains, besides, an abundance of other good reading matter, just the sort that one enjoys at this season. There is a splendid article, fully illustrated, about "Brazil;" "A Poet at Home" tells about Elia Wheeler Wilcox and her lovely home, and with it are pictures of "the poet's corner" and por-traits of her in some of her noted gowns whether you ever enjoyed that rare sport moose-hunting or not, you will be interested in "A Stray Shot at a Moose," written by the fortunate amateur sportsman who brought down his game at the first shot, which is also finely illustrated: "A Seven Days' Tramp and What it Cost" describes a "tramp" made by eight girls and a chaperon, and the chaperon tells the story; then there are stories and poems, and the various departments are replete with useful and amusing matter, and there are nearly 200 illustrations, besides a beautiful water-color.
"Play ball, Pa!" which appeals to every ad nirer and devotee of base ball. And this is only a fair sample of what one gets monthly in this ideal Family Magazine, which is published for $2 a year, by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York City York City.

Western Letter.

OGDEN, Utab. Aug. 1, 1891 Ogden is well named the "Gem City of the Rockies," being one of the handsomest cities in the west, both from a scenic and architectural point of view. It nestles at the base of the Wahsatch mountains, whose snow-capped peaks can be seen all summer long, and from the residence part of the city a charming view of the Great Salt Lake can be enjoyed in addition to the mountain view. The streets are extra width, and regularly laid out; beautiful shade trees line both sides of the residence thoroughfares, which with the many attractive homes and climate that cannot be surpassed make Ogden a delightful place of residence.

In 1880 the population was 6000; according to the directory just published, the city and surrounding suburbs, number 29,000 people and growing rapidly. During 1890 pearly one thousand buildings were erected. several of them worthy of notice. Reed Hotel, a handsome six story red brick building, costing (including furniture) $175, 000. The Opera House in connection with a five story office building, is just completed. The Utah Loan and Trust Co. are erecting a seven story office building at a cost of $150,000. At present there are several five story buildings, three large churches, and any number of smaller business blocks near-ing completion. Architects are very busy, and they all prophesy a prosperous year for their city.

Ogden is the natural railroad center of this inter-mountain country, the seven roads all having headquarters here, while several of the eastern trunk lines are con emplating building to the coast, by the way of Ogden.

From a manufacturing point of view, this city is bound to be the "Pittsburg of the West," for the surrounding mountains are filled with coal and iron. One iron mill is now completed and ready for ousiness, the promoters of another company are now fig-uring on a plant to cost about a quarter of a million. Water power is one of the great attractions to the manufacturer and there is a great plenty to supply any number of factories at a nominal cost. As a farmers town, Ogden will discount any Michigar burg. The adjacent country is thickly populated, farms average less than four hundred acres each, which means more families to the square mile, consequently more trade to the merchants. Understand, too, a forty acre, ranchman in Utah, can make more money yearly than an eastern farmer can clear from 160 acres, of improved land, on account of the rich soil, good markets, and irrigation advantages. Think of selling $800 worth of onions from one acre of land: $500 profit on one acre of potatoes, while forty bushels of wheat to the acre is an average yield. As a fruit country, the orchards and vincards rival those of California in Lot) qualty and quantity, while the market price is much higher owing to the vast mining country near by. Ogden is already a tour-ist city: every day the hotels number among their arrivals, people traveling for pleasure. Only a day or two ago, one of Raymond's Boston excursion parties of 275 people stop-ped for a day and some of them were so well pleased with the city they bought real estate as an investment. The Great Salt Lake, only a few minutes' ride, is a noted resort in summer, while the Hot Springs. nine miles from here, blds fair to rival the Hot Spring of Arkansas as a cure for theumatism and other blood disease. In regard to the citizens too much praise cannot be given them for their enterprise and devotion to the advancement of all public interests. In the election just passed you will find Mormons and Gentiles among the successfu candidates. I have learned this fact, the Mormons of Ogden are among the most suc cessful of the bankers, professional, and mercantile business men, ever ready with their money and influence to aid any enter-prize to aid to the future greatness of the Gem City of the Rockies."

Rockies. Yours truly. GENTILE.

The Parent of Insomnia The parent of insomnia, or wakefulness, is in nine cases out of ten a dyspeptic stomach. Good digestion gives sound sleep, in-digestion interferes with it. The brain and stomach spmpathize. One of the prominent symptoms of a weak state of the gastric organs is a disturbance of the great nerve entrepot, the brain. Invigorate the stomach and you restore equilibrium to the great centre. A most reliable medicine for the pur-pose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is far preferable to mineral sedatives and powerful narcotics, which, though they may for a time exert a soporific influence upor the brain, soon cease to act, and invariably injure the tone of the stomach. The Bitter on the contrary, restore activity to that all important organ, and their beneficient influence is reflected in sound sleep and a tranquil impetus is likewise given to the action of the liver and bowels by its use.

Literature of the Seventh Command.

It is not surprising that one almost involuntarily says that, if this is what the people prefer to read, it were better had they never learned their letters. Such a feeling can be only momentary, but it is natural. literature of the seventh commandment has not hitherto flourished in commmunities of English blood either in the crude or the deregish blood either in the crude of the de-veloped form of fiction; but it is certainly increasing on the book stalls, and it is wide-ly read. It is not long ago that the plea was made by one of those who regret the limitations imposed on the English novel that, since we are to have such stories by inferior authors and in their most unliterary form, it would be better to have them by nasters of the art in the French taste. This is the same error that involved in the expectation that a better American sort of popular reading will force out of the market the English wares already referred to. The public which demands the inferior kind will not take the better, if produced. An American Guy de Maupassant would not com-pete with Saltus or any other of the authors in this part of the field. These books are seldom mentioned in our journals or magazines, except when advertised; they are published and circulated silently; so far as criticism is concerned, they are ignored; but they are read.—George E. Woodberry in the August Forum.
